

For Immediate Release: April 16, 2009

Media Contact:

Phil Chipouras, What's Next Career Transition Services, 303-565-1521

phil@whatsnextconsulting.net or

Laura Holloway, Pivot Communication, 303-499-9291

lholloway@pivotcomm.com

What's Next Career Transition Services names director

DENVER—Phil Chipouras has been named director of What's Next Career Transition Services, a division of The Boomer Group. What's Next provides training, coaching and career resources for baby boomers facing a change in job or career status. Chipouras will oversee business development and direct curriculum and coaching services.

Chipouras earned a Master's of Education in adult learning from Colorado State University and is a certified career coach with more than 35 years of human resources experience. Prior to What's Next, he was a career coach and consultant at Denver-based Lee Hecht and Harrison, a large workforce solutions firm.

"Phil brings What's Next a wealth of experience and a diverse network of resources in the Denver area," said The Boomer Group President Stephanie Klein. "Phil's background in career counseling and coaching makes him a great fit as What's Next works to better prepare baby boomers for the next phase of their careers."

Under Chipouras' leadership, What's Next will offer three levels of employment transition services:

- Premier Service includes assessments, marketing tips, resume work, networking opportunities, interviewing tips and techniques, open forums, and individual career counseling. A career coach will work closely with the client to develop an individual project plan.
- Quick Start Program is a one-month session for individuals that includes a focus on resume development, marketing plan, networking and practice with interviews.
- Ala-Carte Service includes two-hour classes presented monthly on a number of personal development and job-seeking skills.

For more information about What's Next Career Transition Services, contact Phil Chipouras at (303) 565-1521, or phil@whatsnextconsulting.net.

About What's Next Career Transition Services (www.whatsnextconsulting.net)

Formed in 2009 with a Rose Community Foundation grant, What's Next Career Transition Services provides individual job outplacement services for baby boomers. These services include skills assessment, career coaching, resume and personal marketing plan development, interview tips and techniques, networking activities and connections to valuable employment resources. What's Next Career Transition Services is a division of The Boomer Group.

###